..... JEWELRY PERFECTION.

ideas Have Changed Regarding Desirability of Solitaires. Modern jewelry, and perhaps more especially summer jewelry, emphasizes the fact that the artistic side of America is growing. Time was, and not so long ago, a fashionable jeweler informs as, when the semi-precious stones simply could not be sold here. Even rubies and emeralds were sacrificed, when disposed of at all, at half or a third what a diamond of the same weight and quality would bring. Even in diamonds artistic mountings were not in any great demand. The idea was to icquire diamonds, as many as possible, and of a size that suggested one might realize on them promptly-a gambleresque sort of property that was fondly supposed to be ornamental as well as useful in times of need, when one's ancle would exchange it for spot cash. Not even the man who still sticks to this solitaire willingly pays a considerable amount to have it reset in one of the beautiful hand-carved mountings.

While summer is the time of times to display bracelets, owing to the elbow sleeves so general for house and evening wear, yet, we are informed. the tremendous vogue of the armlet will not be entirely felt before autumn. There are, indeed, more designs under way than can be finished before fall, So far the snake is the winner. Jeweled snakes, their graceful scales built upon a spring, are first choice. The gold is manipulated in oriental effects, and is richness itself. A great favorite, too, is the new chain bracelet. These are set across the outside with five precious or semi-precious stones.

Smartest among the belt pins are the new ones in perfect safety-pin effect, the front being paved, with a row of diamonds preferably. It seems reckless to have these pins at the back of the belt, but, since we seldom hear of mishaps, no doubt they're safe enough.

The diamond barrettes are in the very same finish, little showing save the stones.

Platinum is still the smartest mountnot add to theirs, but it certainly takes nothing away.

But it is in the colored stones that the newer art shows to most advantage. A ruby in an antique, rose-gold, hand-carved mounting is as gorgeous as a dream. Exquisite is a delicate pinky, baroque pearl in a very palerose-gold environment, with a few tiny starry brilliants by way of emphasis. linery. Emeralds are better in the dark, greenish gold. But any and all stones are only mounted after due consideration.

The marquise ring is revived with a vengeance, especially for wear on the little finger. There's no more graceful shape than this long oval, and if well designed it is beautiful. A splendid example shows a long opal of wonderful quality. It is surrounded with dia-

One in diamonds shows each little streamer tipped with a diamond and an Alexandrite. The whole family of necklaces is more or less on graceful La Valliere lines.

Womankind is taking to fobs, the sportier the better. A very clever one is of black leather, with the cleverest charm, consisting of a gold horseshoe with diamond nailheads, and a platinum stirrup inside the horseshoe. It is

To meet the requirements of this pastime the hostess produces a half-dozen unembroidered doilies stamped for working, with needles, floss and scissors. Again, the fancywork may take the form of a cheirographic cushion or table cover on which names of guests are written with lead pencil and afterward embroidered, retaining as far as possible the character of the autograph. Ices, coffee and cakes are passed from time to time by a maid. A bowl of lemonade wreathed with vines and a tray of small colored punch glasses should occupy a table at some convenient point. Hammocks, books, photographs, croquet, tennis and bowls are other means of enjoyment which should be arranged for if it can be done with convenience.-Mary Dawson, in Ccod Housekeeping.

There are days in most commates when even the thinnest flannel seems quite too heavy, and when the only comfortable material to wear is one that may be laundered and made up without any lining. The wash silks are quite as cool, indeed, rather cooler, than the fabrics which require to have starch in them, but they are the only exception to the rule of cotton and linen, and may indeed be called wash as often as do the piques and linens. When you meet so many people, with many of whom you are barely acquaiated, you must learn to remember names, or you'll make enemies. People don't like to have their names forgotten. It irritates them. It's an unspoken assertion of their insignificance."

"But I thought forgetting names was a natural infirmity."

"It is supposed to be; but natural infirmities, like other difficulties, you know, are opportunities for the great! You have no idea how much can be done toward overcoming them." "It sounds very heroic!"

"Of course. Without a touch of the heroic we become flabby or common place, or both. It takes mental power to overcome the 'what-you-call-it' habit; but once having wrestled with it and conquered it, you realize the value of available intelligence."-New York

The Lemon as a Tollet Article.

Apart from its use for a beverage and culinary aid the lemon may be made to serve several other uses. A little juice rubbed on the teeth occasionally will prevent the accumulation and remove the deposits of tartar, and the juice is also said to prevent chilblains; diluted with a little soft water it is very cleansing to the scalp and acts as a tonic, and it removes stains from the figers and nails. Mixed with equal parts of honey and cologne it makes an agreeable whitening lotion for the hands and prevents the nails from splitting and the skin from growing over them.

A little fresh lemon juice, applied after steaming or washing the face in hot water, will loosen obstinate blackheads, and the lemon skins, after the juice has been extracted for culinary use, if tied in cheesecloth and placed in the water pitcher or bath will render ing for diamonds. Its whiteness may the skin very smooth, white and delicately fragrant. The juice of a lemon, taken in a cup of hot water without sugar before breakfast, is very helpful in some cases of imperfect indigestion. -American Queen.

A Trying Fashion.

If the craze continues, everything will be collarless soon. The blouse is trying to discard its collar, and already many smart women are wearing new spring dresses that have nothing whatever in the form of a neck covering. In the majority of cases the effect is that the dainty little chemisette and collar of lace or soft silk has inadvertently been forgotten, says Home Chat. The requirement of the Council committee that the keeper of historic old St. John's Church and burying ground shall hereafter appear in the costume a Continental is bringing about some amusing results. This innovation when carried out will be watched with interest. Odd to relate, the keeper of the church in which Patrick Henry said "Give me liberty or give me death" is not an American, but an Italian, named Antonio Graffinga. He speaks only broken English, but is more familiar with the history of the old church than many of the oldest residents. It is de clared that few men in the State could stand in old St. John's and recite Patrick Henry's famous speech with a much feeling as Graffinga, who is to wear the Continental uniform prescrib ed for him by the city fathers while walking among the graves of the dead of two centuries agone.

COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

General Trade Conditions.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s "Weekly Review of Trade" says: Quiet conditions have prevailed in most branches of business, especially in those markets already affected by labor disputes. Large interest payments testify to the prosperous condition of railways, industrial corporations and financial institutions, and, aside from the labor troubles, the half year just ended was remarkably satisfactory. Railway earnings for June exceeded last year's by 6.4 per cent, and those of 1900 by 19.9 per cent. In the iron and steel districts there have been no developments of importance. In spite of many serious drawbacks, railroad earnings for the half year just closed are the largest ever reported. Total gross earnings of all railroads in the United States reporting for the half year to date are $618,470,508, a gain of 5.7 per cent over last year and 18.7 per cent over 1900. This report is practically complete for roads embracing three-fourths of the total mileage of the United States for five months and includes partial returns for June. Com-mercial failures in the first half of 1902 numbered 6165, with liabilities of $60,-374,856. Although this is an increase of $4.570,166 compared with last year, and $18,311,923 more than the exceptionally favorable record of 1899, it is necessary to go back 15 years to find another more gratifying showing than that of 1002.
